STATE PROGRESSIVES WILL PRESERVE INTEGRITY PARTY

Hold Rousing Meeting Denver and Decide Not to Fuse; Permanent Organization After National Gathering

SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.
DENVER, Nov. 25.—At the close of one of the most enthusiastic Progressive meetings ever held in Colorado, attended by 150 men and women from all over the state, a resolution introduced by Clarence P. Dodge that the new party preserve its integrity by holding aloof from all fusion, was adopted by a practically unanimous vote. The only voice raised for fusion was that of Sheriff Daniel Sullivan of Denver.

Beginning with Mr. Dodge, practically every speaker at tonight's Progressive dinner at the Auditorium denounced all thought of fusion. Representatives from those counties where there had been fusion in the recent campaign agreed that henceforth in the party and state elections there should be no fusion with either of the old parties.

A climax to the enthusiasm was reached when Edward P. Costigan, defeated Progressive candidate for governor, in a splendid speech, repudiated all thought of fusion. To the suggestion of Sheriff Sullivan that he could have been elected governor if fusion had been made, he replied:

Trying to Juggle Vote?
"I was told just a few moments ago by a prominent Republican that the Democratic and Republican parties are a combination in Colorado to hold up the returns from certain counties until the vote in the state can be so juggled that the Republican vote on state candidates will show larger than the Progressive vote and the Democratic and Republican parties have combined to

NEW CATHOLIC CHURCH FOR COLO. CITY ASSURED

Plans for the erection of a handsome new edifice of brick and stone, at a cost of about $12,000, on a site recently purchased at the southeast corner of Colorado avenue and Third street, are being advanced by the congregation of St. Mary's Catholic church, Colorado city.

Warrants were filed yesterday for $1,200 were filed yesterday with the county clerk. The deeds gave the property from James and Margaret McIntosh, Colorado city, to H. Ferguson, Lithium, Neb. to Charles C. Matz, bishop of the diocese of Denver, for the use of St. Mary's church, Colorado city.

Rev. J. H. Brinker, priest of St. Mary's church, last night said that a setting of the congregation will be held on to arrange definite plans for the erection of the new building.

"We will erect a substantial edifice," said the Rev. Brinker, "one of which a community may well be proud. We have had the proposition in view for some time, but we deemed it best not to make it public until an actual beginning was made. This now has been accomplished by the purchase of the site. A setting of the congregation will be held in the immediate future, when plans for the edifice will be discussed and various details arranged."

EXPLOSIONS CLAIM HEAVY TOLL LIFE AND PROSPERITY

Brooklyn East River Twelve May Be Dead in Sarch Plant Holocaust

SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.
NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Brooklyn's East river water front was the scene today of the most serious explosion in fire that section has seen for years.

Eighteen men were removed to hospitals suffering from burns and lacerations, from which a number may die. Several persons on the scene at the time were missing tonight, but late reports indicated earlier beliefs that three lives had been lost. The area three blocks was swept. The property loss is officially estimated at $200,000.

The fire started with a series of explosions of chemicals on the ground floor of the five-story building of the Sulphur company, in the Williamsburg section. Of 70 men at work on the building, a dozen on the main floor were hurled in every direction, suffering terrible burns, bruises and injuries. Four other explosions followed, and the building was soon enveloped in the blue flames of burning sulphur.

Workers who had escaped from others caught their way through the flames to the rescue of their comrades, and were themselves overcome by flames which poured down a large bay window, and then spread to the plants of the Brooklyn Gas company and the Pratt and Standard companies that a series of terrible explosions was feared.

Heat blistered the gas and oil pipes, but they escaped destruction.

FATE OF TRIO IS KNOWN TO JURY

VERDICT REACHED, BUT IS NOT REPORTED

Caruso Only One of Three Who Is Eligible for Electric Chair

SALAM, Mass., Nov. 25.—The fate of Joseph J. Ettor, Arturo Giovannitti and Joseph Caruso, charged with responsibility for the murder of Anna Lopez in a strike riot at Lawrence last winter, was reported tonight to have been determined by the jury which tried them, but the verdict will not be known until tomorrow.

Though the jury, which for six weeks had listened to the evidence, retired at 12:43 o'clock this afternoon, no verdict had been reached at 6 o'clock when Judge Quinn went to his home. The judge announced that he would not return during the night either to receive a verdict or in response to a request for further instructions.

An hour after Judge Quinn went home, the jury left the deliberation room, and it was reported they had agreed upon a verdict. While the jurors were at supper, Clerk George went to the home of Judge Quinn, and it was reported a verdict might be returned tonight.

Degree Verdict Improbable.
The case was given to the jury after Judge Quinn had delivered a long charge in which he gave the instruction that neither Ettor or Giovannitti could be found guilty of murder in the first degree.

"The evidence relating to these two defendants," said the court, "does not warrant conviction for murder in the first degree, because it is not contended that either premeditated the death of any one."

For Caruso, the instructions did not preclude the electric chair. Should the jury find him guilty of participation in the fatal riot, the court charged, it might find him guilty of murder in the first or second degree.

Even Hopes for Caruso.

A hopeful instruction for this prisoner, however, was that the jury in order to adjudge him guilty of first degree murder must be satisfied that he, or his confederates acting with him, premeditated taking a human life.

The instructions also eliminated the possibility of a verdict of manslaughter against any of the defendants. The very nature of the indictment precluded such a verdict, the court asserted. Ettor and Giovannitti must be found guilty of murder in the second degree or acquitted.

Hundreds of friends and sympathizers of the defendants were in Salem today waiting the streets near the court house until long after dark. One man, who refused to move from the court house entrance when ordered

ARREST FOILED M'NAMARA PLOTS

Was to 'Wipe City of Los Angeles Off the Map,' Says M'Namara

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 25.—The conspiracy of the defense that M'Namara and O'Neil were responsible for the explosion and the Iron Workers' union executive board and President Frank St. Ryan knew nothing of any part of the $1,000 expended from the union funds for destroying the property was pursued in the cross examination of M'Namara at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial today.

Referring to the defense by the government, M'Namara told stories of how he and the McManis had talked of blowing up the backs of the Panama canal and the Los Angeles and San Francisco railroads, and that M'Namara was to return to Los Angeles and wipe that city off the map by a series of explosions and how they were prevented from carrying out these plots by their arrest in April, 1911.

He also had related that after his and James R.'s arrest in Detroit and on the train to Chicago, he offered the bidding, a detective, $50,000 to allow them to escape, telling the bidding, "If you don't see it, Clarence Bureau will."

Sergeant Kern, for the defense cross-examined M'Namara.

"Terrorized" Into Dynamiting.

"Was the pay you received from the McManis your motive in causing so many explosions?" asked Sergeant Kern.

"No, it was not money," Herbert D. Hooker, who was first started into the dynamite business, testified.

"I was not in the business to prevent me from getting work. Then I was recruited by a fellow named M'Namara, who was for the good of the Iron Workers' union. He said he would build up the union."

M'Namara admitted he had been arrested three times, twice for larceny and once for disorderly conduct.

"After the Los Angeles Times build-

BIG CONVENTION PROTECT PROSPECTOR, SAYS PRES. TAYLOR

Spokane Extends a Hearty Welcome to Host of Visitors

SPOKANE, Wash., Nov. 25.—Exchanging picks for politics and drags for diplomacy, delegates to the fifteenth annual American Mining congress cleared away tonight the preliminary work of the sessions and prepared to deal tomorrow with the problems affecting the welfare of the mining industry throughout the entire country.

The questions on which the influence of the congress will be brought to bear were outlined tonight by President Samuel A. Taylor of Pittsburgh in his annual address.

"The first of these questions," he said, "some of which are in their infancy, is the safety and efficiency of mining operations. Second is the question of conservation, conservation in the broader sense that will be applicable to the present generation as well as to those of the future; conservation that will prevent the conditions exemplified in the coal industry, where it is estimated that 250,000,000 tons, or half the production of the country, is lost in production, and in which 2,635 men lost their lives within the year."

Should Protect Prospector.

"The mining congress should stand in such a strong position between the prospector and the capitalist that it will eliminate the false promoter and take in mining investments, to the commercial good of the mining industry."

"The diversity of laws in different states governing mining operations should receive the attention of this congress, and its influence should be applied to remedy these diversities not only upon state legislatures, but upon the federal government."

"The federal laws pertaining to the control of mineral lands, water power and rights of way over the public domain, as well as the operations of the Sherman law as applied to combinations of capital engaged in mining, need the present and future attention of the congress for the protection of the best interests of those engaged in mining."

"The workman's compensation law, practically in its infancy, and much to be desired for this congress to do in the working out of the problems of this question."

"Alaskan conditions must receive consideration before the conditions in that great territory are solved satisfactorily."

Mr. Taylor urged the establishment of a bureau of the congress in Washington and closed with a plea for unity of action among the delegates.

The evening of a hearty western welcome to the delegates occupied the opening session this afternoon.

As the roll was called, President Taylor failed on delegates to respond.

Among those who spoke were David Ross, state labor commissioner of Illinois; Glenville A. Collins, representing the Peruvian government; E. Jacobs, personal representative of Premier McBride of British Columbia; George A. Baldwin of Valdez, Alaska; Paul Clagstone of Idaho; W. B. Shackelford of Joplin, Mo.; and R. L. Gougherty of Lead, S. D.

PEACE OF ALL EUROPE NOW HANGS ON SLENDER THREAD

Turkey May Take Advantage of Breach to Start General Conflagration; Outcome of Negotiations Doubtful

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The extreme anxiety manifested by all European governments to deny reports of warlike preparations and to represent the political situations as peaceful and satisfactory, is in itself an indication on how slender a thread the issues of peace and war in Europe now hang.

The danger arises not alone from the conflicting interests of Austria, Serbia and the other powers, but from the possibility that Turkey, following the traditional policy of profiting by the embroilment of the great powers, may adopt an irreconcilable attitude in the peace negotiations.

Beyond the fact that the political situation is not today anything but a precarious one, there appears to be a suspension of negotiations at the Tchatalja lines, apparently for tactical reasons rather than for tactical reasons.

The semi-official Balkan news paper, the "Balkan," which is published in Constantinople, has been circulating a report that the British and French navies are in the Black Sea, and that the British and French navies are in the Black Sea, and that the British and French navies are in the Black Sea.

PERSINGER'S CONCERT A BRILLIANT TRIUMPH

Virtuoso Showered With Masses of Flowers Audience Carried Away By Exquisite Music

By ALBERT C. PEARSON.
In a criticism of Louis Persinger, three years ago, I said: "This young man has hit the wagon to a star, and he will go far." It was a true prophecy. The young man has arrived. I think that everybody who attended the recital at the Burns last night, and a goodly share of the population of Colorado Springs was present, will assent to this conclusion cheerfully.

It was an enthusiastic audience, undoubtedly the happiest persons in town. Mr. W. K. Jewett, who has financed Mr. Persinger during the last three years, and has made a recognition of his genius possible, and Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Persinger, who must have felt, as they listened to their boy's playing, that their many sacrifices had been entirely worth while.

The recital was a triumph from beginning to end. The young musician received 14 encores, and responded to six with encores. Every number was done exquisitely but one, the Adagio from the Mozart concerto, which was on a plane only reached by truly great artists. The Prelude and Allegro exhibited big tone and virtuosity; and all the smaller numbers fairly bubbled over with fun, light-stepping life, good humor and daintiness.

The young violinist is splendidly equipped. He has a beautiful, full, ringing tone, mastery technique, a satisfying, poetical style that never degenerates into mere virtuosity; an intellectual grasp of musical values, a feeling for rhythm in all its phases, and last, but not least, repose. To sum up Louis Persinger in one sentence, I shall say that he is that unusual combination, an artist of imagination and intellect, who uses a splendid technique only as a means of interpretation. I said, "in one sentence." Perhaps a word will do justice.

His manner is unaffected and most engaging. The pianist Mr. Samuel Chotkowski, who played Zimbalist's accompaniments last season, made a very favorable impression. His support was always intelligently sympathetic and unobtrusively in restraint.

Such sons as Louis Persinger are assets to any town. May our city develop many of them, and may each have a mother like Mrs. Jewett, sympathetic, helpful and wise.

The Colorado Springs Musical club has made arrangements with Mr. Persinger for a return engagement, the recital to take place at the Burns Monday, December 2.

GUNMEN WILL RECEIVE DEATH SENTENCE TODAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Sentence of death in the electric chair will be pronounced tomorrow upon the four gunmen convicted of murdering Herman Rosenthal at the instigation of Charles Becker, the former police lieutenant.

Postal Savings Bank Indicates Prosperity

An increase of several thousand dollars in the total deposits, and some 400 new depositors in the local postal savings bank is taken by business men and postoffice officials to mean an added impetus in business in Colorado Springs this fall. In many cities the deposits in the government bank are taken as a business barometer.

There are now 700 depositors in the bank, and the deposits aggregate more than $36,000. This gives an average of $51 to each depositor, although the amounts range from less than $25 to more than $500.

MADE VICE CHAIRMAN CARNEGIE FOUNDATION

Signal Honor for President W. F. Stocum of Colorado College; Local Fund Growing

The work of William F. Stocum, president of Colorado College, received unusual recognition from the trustees of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching at their annual meeting last week, when the trustees elected him vice-chairman of the board in place of David Starr Jordan of Leland Stanford university, who has resigned.

Announcement of the appointment reached here yesterday. After the annual meeting of the trustees of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, held in New York city, it was announced that 48 pensions and retirement allowances had been granted during the year, making a total of 398 now in force, at an annual expenditure of $870,000.

Endowments of the foundation now amount to $14,000,000, Andrew Carnegie having added $2,000,000 since the meeting of the trustees a year ago. The foundation was created with a fund of $10,000,000, and a promise of $5,000,000 more when it was needed. The gift announced at the meeting just closed makes three of the additional $5,000,000, for during the first years of the foundation's existence it managed to save $1,000,000 of its income.

Colorado College Among the First.
Colorado college was among the first of the educational institutions of the country to be benefited by the pension list of the foundation, and Dr. Stocum has been a member of the board of trustees of the foundation since the death of President W. R. Harper of Chicago university some years ago, whose place he was appointed to fill. Other trustees of the foundation are the following university presidents: A. L. Lowell of Harvard; Arthur T. Hadley of Yale; Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia; Jacob Gould Schurman of Cornell; Ira Remsen of Johns Hopkins; Henry C. King of Oberlin; James M. Taylor of Vassar; David Starr Jordan of Leland

Stanford, and Charles R. Van Hise of Wisconsin.

This is the second great recognition within the last six months of the valuable services rendered to the education of the country by Dr. Stocum. Last June Harvard university bestowed the honorary degree of LL. D. upon him at its annual commencement exercises. He had received similar recognition from Amherst college, the University of Nebraska, and Illinois college in earlier years, and Beloit college gave him the degree of D. D. in 1907.

Raising College Fund.
Dr. Stocum has been in the east for the last two weeks working to raise the $200,000 required for the increased endowment of the college. When the general education board promised Colorado college $50,000 a year ago last April it was on condition that a total sum of $300,000 be raised, $100,000 of which could be used for the erection of a new college building, while the remaining $200,000 should go into the permanent endowment funds of the institution. A friend of the college gave $50,000 for the new building for men, with the stipulation that the other $50,000 needed for the building should be raised in Colorado. Thirteen thousand of the amount needed for the building is still to be raised.

There are now but 275,000 left for the completion of the entire sum of $300,000, for one of the conditions laid down by the general education board was that the entire sum should be subscribed by December 31, 1912. The addition of $200,000 to the endowment funds of the college will mean much to both the college and the state, as practically the entire income from this fund will go to the salary roll of the institution, and it will be possible for the college to receive a larger number of students. It is estimated that an average student of the college is worth about $100 a year to the benevolent of Colorado Springs.

Jewett personally furnished the chain, an exquisite piece of work, made of alternate links of solid gold and platinum.

Mr. Hall's presentation address was as follows:

Mr. Hall's Address:
Ladies and Gentlemen—I crave your indulgence for the discharge of a mission better fitted to an occasion less public, were it not that, in some sort, I speak for the public.

I attempt no voicing of your emotions under the compelling spell of this young artist. You have spoken for yourselves by kindling eye and breathless hush as plainly as by the surge and throbs of applause.

America has at last given to the world a master of the violin, and he comes from among us! It was here—a young David—that he played before Stratton. It was the gold from our mines that flew from his fingers abroad. It is one of our goodly women who became his Maecenas, when that steady Stratton's hand, and another who first led him to the feet of Ysaye.

And now, his technical training completed, crowned with triumph in the art centers of the old world, he comes HOME! Unspoiled, and at 25—one of the great masters of our time, if not of all time. Thus speak his brethren of the art. Shall we grieve them?

His Genius Recognized.

DISCOURAGED, NERVOUS MEN AND WOMEN

The Great Tonic, Tona Vita, Is Building Them Up by Thousands

A few years ago if you were nervous and did not know with little strength and poor health generally, you would have wondered what to do to build yourself up.

Nowadays, if you remain this miserable condition a day longer, it is your own fault. Tona Vita the wonderful tonic that has built up thousands of run-down people in the last two years, is ready to help you.

Get it at once. Take it a few weeks and your old health and strength will return without fail. You will feel like a new person almost from the first dose of this pleasant tasting tonic.

Write yourself after taking Tona Vita one week and see how much you have gained in weight.

Tona Vita is sold by Robinson Drug Co. of this city.

Land of the feverish hunt for gold, there are those who gladly pause to recognize a genius which is not material, that we, who have given to the world Booth and Sargeant and Winters and McMonnies and Emma James, now give in Persinger a Paganini, a Sarasate, a Ysaye, but with an added quality because he is the interpreter of that wider human sympathy which is the world-voice of our time.

Master! I am charged by the Musical club and American Music center of this city, its chamber of Commerce, as well as by some hundred other of your townfolk, to tender you a mark of their appreciation more lasting and more substantial than the applause of the moment. It will be your constant and intimate and faithful companion.

Perhaps you will see in it not only the gold pieces which have slipped lightly from jeweled fingers, but also the dimples and the quarters which have come swiftly from hands worn with toil—swiftly, because, otherwise they could not come at all, so many and so unending are the demands upon those who earn their bread.

Predicts Brilliant Future.

This watch will mark many an hour of triumph for you, but that is a small matter when placed against the stimulus to the aspiring, the solace to the laden, which it will be yours to bring to the rich future now before you. Your art will grow with the years. Your interpreter of strains caught by others you may become a revealer of harmonies as yet unheard, a prophet speaking in a voice which is one with the true and the good. It is a glorious life that awaits you, if in the future, as in the past, you can to your own best self be true. Holding special as a gift of God the genius which sets you apart for highest service.

In that belief, and with that hope, we ask you to accept and wear this watch as a daily reminder of your home-folk.

Reception at Antlers.

After the recital, Mr. and Mrs. Jewett entertained at a reception and dinner at the Antlers hotel in honor of Mr. Persinger. Two large and six small tables were decorated with baskets of pink roses and white chrysanthemums and the guests included the following:

Mr. Persinger, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Penrose, Mr. and Mrs. Chaloner B. Schuler, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hagerman, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Otis, Judge Wray, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Russell, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. ## GIBSON JURY UNABLE TO REACH A VERDICT

Locked Up at 1 o'clock This Morning After Over Five Hours' Deliberation

GOSHEN, N. Y., Nov. 25 (Tuesday)—The jury trying Burton W. Gibson on the charge of murdering his client, Mrs. Rosa Menchik Szabo, deliberated until 1 o'clock this morning without reaching a verdict. At that hour they were still out and they had been out more than five hours and were locked up for the night.

While Gibson sat in his cell awaiting word from the jury room, his wife, worn by her long vigil, was resting within call at a nearby cottage, after having paced up and down in front of the court house for some time in the rain.

The court had eliminated manslaughter from its charge and directed that one of three verdicts be returned—murder in the first degree, second degree or acquittal.

In the court room at the time was a detective armed with a warrant on which Gibson would be rearrested in case he was acquitted of the murder charge. This warrant charged Gibson with the larceny in 1910 of $5,000 from Hugh Trelinger, an aged awning maker, and a former client of the prisoner.

At 2 o'clock this morning the jury sent word to Justice Tompkins that it could not agree. The justice was summoned to the court room.

WIFE ASKED CONSENT TO ELOPE WITH BOYCE, SAYS SNEED ON STAND

FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 25—

John Beal Sneed, on trial on a charge of murder in connection with the killing of A. G. Boyce, Sr., began his testimony in his own behalf today but had not progressed far with his narrative when court adjourned for the day.

Sneed told of his boyhood friendship for A. G. Boyce, Jr., of their intimate relations in after years, and of how he learned from his wife that she and Boyce had planned to elope. Mrs. Sneed asked that he give his consent.

A family conference followed, it was testified, when it was determined that Mrs. Sneed's mind was unbalanced and she was sent out to a sanatorium at Fort Worth, from which she eloped with the younger Boyce.

At this point court adjourned. The killing of Boyce last January and more recently that of A. G. Boyce, Jr., by Sneed, as a sequel to the elopement.

W. A. Weaver, who testified this morning as an eye witness to the shooting of the elder man, was arrested on a charge of perjury late today on complaint of the county authorities.

Presiding Judge Swayne announced this afternoon that hereafter he would read no communications coming to him through the mail with reference to the Sneed trial. He said he was being deluged with letters bearing on the trial, some of them evidently written with the intention of influencing him and hereafter his secretary will open and answer all his mail.

away by the police, was locked up on the charge of obstructing the sidewalk. His arrest did not appear to anger the crowd and there was no demonstration when the prisoner was taken away.

Gets Mother's Blessing.

Throughout the day and night the streets near the court house were patrolled and a reserve force was held on duty.

Squads of mill workers walked back and forth in front of the court house for hours watching the windows of the upper room where the jurors were deliberating. Frequently members of the jury could be seen near the windows.

Shortly before 7 o'clock the jurors were marched under guard of six deputies to their hotel. It was stated then that they were only going to supper, but the report spread later that an agreement had been reached.

The prisoners were taken from the court house to the jail as soon as the jury retired. Giovanniotti, just before he left, was handed a cablegram from his mother in Italy, a message of cheer and a mother's blessing. When he had read it, he showed it to Ettore and then to their attorneys.

GOMPERS ILL, CAN'T ATTEND CONVENTION

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 25.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, was prevented by illness from participating in the opening of the annual convention of the building trades department of the federation this morning, but he is not seriously indisposed. The strain of the two weeks' meeting of the major body and a cold contracted Saturday kept him in his room at a hotel yesterday and today.

The building trades department is made up of 194 unions with a membership of 478,237. Today's sessions were devoted to reports of officers and the executive council.

The executive council reported inability to give statistics about the number of men killed or injured in building trades industries, because of the incompleteness of state and federal reports on the subject. It was made known that the charter of the Amalgamated Association of Carpenters and Joiners had been recalled because of the association's refusal to unite with the United Brotherhood of Carpenters.

Accidents Cost Railroads Over Ten Millions Yearly, Statistics Show

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—National legislation on workmen's compensation was discussed today at a largely attended meeting under the auspices of the National Civic Federation.

Commissioners on workmen's compensation from many states, delegates appointed by governors of states in which no commissions have been created, labor representatives, employers of labor and members of trade and labor associations took part.

Abraham Belmont, chairman of the civic federation's department on compensation for industrial accidents and their prevention, in his opening address, discussed the question, How may the injured workmen be guaranteed his compensation in case of insolvency on the part of his employers?

and also outlined the civic federation's model compensation act, which provides that next to wages due, an employer's claim shall be a first lien upon a business.

Senator Sutherland of Utah, speaking in support of the proposed federal act, which is based on that of the civic federation, said that under the present law railroads of the country are paying out annually $10,035,000 as compensation to workmen for injuries, but under the proposed laws $18,000,000 would be available.

W. S. Carter, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, opposed federal legislation at present, saying he desired to

CRITICAL TIME OF WOMAN'S LIFE

From 40 to 50 Years of Age. How It May Be Passed in Safety.

Odd, Va.—"I am enjoying better health than I have for 20 years, and I believe I can safely say now that I am a well woman. I was reared on a farm and had all kinds of heavy work to do, which caused the troubles that came on me later. For five years during the change of life I was not able to lift a pail of water. I had hemorrhages which would last for weeks and I was not able to sit up in bed. I suffered a great deal with my back and was so nervous I could scarcely sleep at night, and I did not do any housework for three years."

"Now I can do as much work as any woman of my age in the country, thanks to the benefit I have received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I recommend your remedies to all suffering women."—Mrs. MARTHA L. HOLLOWAY, Odd, Va.

No other medicine for women's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. We know of no other medicine which has such a record of success as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For more than 30 years it has been the standard remedy for women's ills.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

ARREST FOILED

ing was blown up, when you and James B. were hunting in the woods in Wisconsin, you say he admitted to you that he deliberately killed the 21 persons, that he was a printer and that he knew he would kill some one when he put the bomb in the Times building and yet you continued to associate with him?"

"Yes, I did," McNamara had said that when J. J. McNamara, secretary of the union, planned "wholesale explosions," including the blowing up of the Los Angeles city, he was afraid the executive board would cut off his allowance."

Associated With "Murders." "Now, you say McNamara, in order to get more money, proposed to steal $150,000 by killing the treasurer of the automobile races at the Speedway in Indianapolis and yet you still kept company with these men who planned the murder?"

"Yes, I did," McNamara told in detail how much he was paid for each "job."

"When you caused the explosion in the Llewellyn Iron plant in Los Angeles on December 25, 1910, how much did you charge for it?"

"I got $525, which included my expenses."

Other witnesses interrupted McNamara's examination.

Mrs. Sadie MacGuire testified she was a neighbor in Chicago of the McNamara family. She said in November, 1910, the month after the Los Angeles Times explosion, at the request of Mrs. McNamara, she arranged with her uncle, Marion Sharp, at Kenosha, Wis., for McNamara to go on a hunting trip. When the hunters returned to Chicago in January she said she went to a theater party, one of the members of the party being one who answered J. B. McNamara's description. She accompanied Mrs. McNamara and the latter's children to California after McNamara was taken there, and on her return to Chicago she said she placed the McNamara children in the care of Ed Nockels, a labor union official.

Family Paid $25 a Week. Later she said she collected from R. H. Houlihan, financial secretary of the Chicago Iron Workers' union, $25 a week to be paid to Mrs. McNamara, hearing Houlihan on one occasion say to Mrs. McNamara, "I'll give you $25 while this is going on."

Martin Sharpe told of a hunting trip near Conover, Wis., saying McNamara was one of the party.

George W. Caldwell, member of a firm of contractors, said after explosions on his work at Columbus, Ind., and Omaha, Neb., Hoeklin visited him at a hotel under construction at Tulsa, Okla.

"I told Hoeklin I had enough of him and McNamara at Omaha, and I would not unlearn the job," said Caldwell. He replied that they would get even with me. The work later was unlearned.

Frank K. Frymter, the business agent at Omaha, had told us he would have to unlearn the job in Omaha, but we did not and the work was dynamited."

David J. Manning, a police official at Springfield, Mass., said that when dynamite was exploded in the tower of the municipal building there one of the prisoners in a nearby station was injured.

"Human Bomb" Acts As Own Lawyer; Is Held to Grand Jury

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 25.—Carl Riedelbach, alias Carl Warr, the "Human Bomb," was bound over today to the grand jury by Police Judge Williams, and a few moments later the grand jury was investigating the case.

Riedelbach was not represented by counsel. However, he took a deep interest in the hearing and frequently interrogated the witnesses. At the request of Chief Sebastian, Riedelbach made an accurate drawing of the infernal machine with which he caused a panic at the central police station last Tuesday. He declared several times that he had no intention of exploding the machine, but that he was "blowing."

Detective James Hosick testified regarding the plan to trap the would-be dynamiter.

He said he met Detective Sam Browne of the district attorney's office, and Browne asked him if he would "take a chance."

"I told him I would," said Hosick. "I said I would 'crown' him and that Sam should grab the box. We figured we had just 15 seconds to work in after I struck the blow."

"Crowning," the witness explained, was using his billy on the crank's head.

Soon after the examination, Detective Browne went before the grand jury with parts of the infernal machine. The hearing will be continued tomorrow.

MOTHERS CONGRESS OPENS IN DENVER

DENVER, Nov. 25.—The fourth annual state convention of the mothers' congress was opened here today for a two-day session and was featured by addresses by visitors from the east and west.

Miss Adelaide Steele Baylor, assistant superintendent of public instruction of Indiana, argued for closer cooperation between state, church, school, and home on behalf of the child's welfare. She declared that it should be the duty of the school to see that a standard was maintained in all of these departments so that the drawbacks of one would not offset the advantages of another.

Miss Edna A. Ritchie, president of the State Normal School of Manual Arts and Home Economics at Santa Barbara, Cal., said that it was essential for the moral development of the child to provide means of bringing the home and school in close contact. She said that among the poor settlements organizations performed a great achievement when they began instructing the mother as well as the child.

PIONEER RESIDENT OF DENVER IS DEAD

DENVER, Nov. 25.—Andrew D. Wilson, millionaire real estate dealer, a member of Colorado's first state legislature in 1876, also former state railroad commissioner, is dead of heart trouble at his home in Denver, following a brief illness.

Mr. Wilson was born in Weston, Mo., in July, 1842, and came to Colorado in 1863. He was clerk in an uncle's store first in Denver and later in Fairplay, Colo., where he became interested in stock raising.

After a few years he devoted most of his life stock and at his death he owned 4,000 lots in North Denver besides holdings in other parts of the city, prominent among his possessions being the Wilson warehouse, a landmark, located at Broadway and Col. avenue.

Mr. Wilson was a bachelor. He was prominent in Masonry, a member of the Blue lodge and Knights Templar commandery in Denver.

Two brothers survive, Edward V. son of Beatrice, Neb., and Robert V. son of El Paso county, Colo. His sister, Mrs. Lattie Rice, lives in the Wilson home in Denver. The funeral arrangements have not been announced pending the arrival of relatives.

Every German town will hereafter keep a record of hard drinkers, locators will have to report all persons who are addicted to habitual intemperance.

Why French Women Always Look Young
(Aurilla in Society World.)

In France mothers and daughters look like sisters. I tried to find out how the women were able to retain their youthful looks until a long middle age. I learned that they were much given to the use of mercurized wax. This wax possesses a remarkable absorbent property which quickly removes the fine wrinkles of old age which are constantly dying and which are the immediate cause of an old-looking complexion. Thus the livelier, healthier, younger skin beneath is given a chance to breathe and show itself. I've tried this treatment myself. In less than two weeks my complexion has become as clear, soft and beautiful as a young girl's. Just once more of mercurized wax, and American druggists have it to do the work the wax is put on nights like cold cream and washed off mornings.

He was at one time a member of the Milwaukee Harvester company, a concern absorbed by the International in 1902.

Profits of the Milwaukee company, according to the witness who negotiated the option on the property to J. R. Morgan and George W. Perkins, averaged $600,000 a year for the two years before the acquisition of the property by the combination formed in 1902.

The sale of the Milwaukee Harvester company, according to the witness, was made through P. D. Middlekauff to Perkins and Morgan.

The Milwaukee company was purchased for the International Harvester combination for approximately $3,000,000, said the witness.

SENATOR RAYNER OF MARYLAND IS DEAD

Funeral in Washington at 2 o'clock Tomorrow—President Taft to Attend

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Funeral services for Senator Rayner of Maryland, who died here early today of neuritis after a protracted illness, will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Rayner home in this city. The interment will be in Rock Creek cemetery in this city.

President Taft and cabinet members have signified their intention of attending the funeral and a committee from both houses of congress will be present.

Senator Rayner had been a lame-duck state since last March. His severe illness covered a period of about six weeks during the session made in the joint political future with Bourke Cockran at Baltimore late in September. Physicians estimated him to retire from the cabinet at once after that and he was sent to his Washington home where he died at 2:06 this morning. Rayner was 62 years old.

Republican Successor

His death creates a vacancy in the senate that probably will be filled by a Republican through appointment by Governor Goldsborough of Maryland.

While the legislature of that state is Democratic, it does not mean this winter and the Republican governor's appointment will hold through the opening sessions of the next congress.

Senator Rayner was one of the striking figures of the senate. He had been a member of that body for nearly eight years and was one of its strong debaters and an recognized authority on constitutional law.

He had attained a national reputation because of his vigorous conduct of the late Admiral Schley's case before the naval court of inquiry that investigated the action of the American officers in the battle with Admiral Cervera's Spanish fleet.

Mr. Rayner was a native of Baltimore and was 52 years old. He was a member of the Maryland legislature when 28 years old and served three terms in the national house of representatives in the period from 1888 to 1892. He was elected to the United States senate in 1904, after having served a four-year term as attorney general of Maryland.

As a member of the committees on foreign relations and judiciary, Senator Rayner attracted special attention during the last few years to America's foreign problems and constitutional questions.

Opposed Russia.
He was a strong advocate of the abrogation of the treaty with Russia because of that country's discrimination against passengers held by American Jews and exercised a marked influence in getting the senate to endorse such action.

The control of the United States senate after March 4 may hinge on the death of Senator Rayner. A Republican who it is expected Governor Goldsborough will appoint in his place, will hold office at least until the Maryland legislative meetings in January, 1914.

Senator Rayner's death removes one of the Democrats on whom the control of the senate depends in the new congress. With his vote, the Democratic leaders counted on 49 votes, or one more than a majority of the total membership of 96.

In any event 48 votes with the vote of the vice president in case of a tie was looked upon as sufficient strength to secure control. While the Democrats have an apparent strength of 48, the death of the Maryland senator reduced the supposed majority to a point very near the dividing line of party control.

Seven hundred pounds of star powder which was on the train was exploded, shattering the wreckage into splinters. It is believed the bridge, which was an old one, had become weakened by recent rains.

STATE OWNERSHIP IN NEBRASKA IS FAILURE

LINCOLN, Nov. 25.—Nebraska has found state ownership of lighting and power plants a failure. The board of public lands and buildings has decided to contract with privately owned concerns to furnish light and power to the state institutions.

The plants which have furnished light and power to the state properties will be closed down and probably sold. According to Secretary of State Wait, the state owned lighting plants are operated at a loss and the power can be purchased from private concerns for less money.

For years it has been the fixed policy of Nebraska to install state owned light, power and water plants in all state institutions. These plants were under the direct control of the board of public lands and buildings. After years of trial the present board has decided to go out of the business of lighting and last week began letting to private concerns the contracts for furnishing light and power.

According to Secretary Wait, the state will save a considerable amount. The private plants are able to sell power to the state at a price which leaves them a profit, but which the state cannot duplicate and break even. In the past the board has simply gone ahead and paid the extra prices, but last week it decided to let two-year contracts to private companies at a much lower rate than it can itself produce the power.

EVOLUTION OR REVOLUTION

IN 1908 the Socialist vote for president was 420,464. In 1912 it was nearly 800,000.

This remarkable increase almost 100 per cent occurred in spite of the fact that the Progressive party this year had adopted a program far more radical than had ever been adopted before by any except the Socialist party. It had been supposed the Progressives would attract many who otherwise would have voted the Socialist ticket.

The election of 1912 showed that the Socialist party in the United States has reached a point where it must be reckoned with in future elections. It is constantly increasing in strength, there is no indication that it has reached its maximum growth.

There is a reason for the growth of the Socialist party. That reason lies in the injustice of our modern industrial organization. A few have much, many have nothing and that makes for Socialism.

Just as there is a reason for Socialism, so there is a cure. Socialism cannot be stopped by persecution, nor by the calling of names. It can be stopped only by the doing of justice to all men.

The revision of the tariff and the restoration of competition will not stop Socialism. The unjust treatment of workmen exists in the Colorado Fuel & Iron company's plant at Pueblo, a competitor of the steel trust just as it exists in the trust's own plants in Pennsylvania and Illinois.

Labor is oppressed in free trade England just as it is in protected Germany. Socialism frankly seeks revolution. It has been quite essentially a destructive party. Its leaders have not yet elaborated, in detail, the steps that would have to be taken in order that the people themselves might take possession of industry.

America is not yet ripe for Socialism but unless conditions are changed soon, and for the better, the revolution for which all Socialists are working will come. It probably will be a bloodless revolution, a revolution of ballots, but it will be none the less a revolution. And, coming suddenly, finding the people unprepared, it will go to excesses, and in the inevitable reaction most of the gain will be lost.

Socialism is revolution, but the Progressive party program is evolution. Revolution or evolution the people will have. If there is not evolution there will inevitably be revolution. The Progressive party has a program that aims to remedy injustices. It aims to protect labor, it would restrain the power of capital, it would provide for a more just distribution of the product of capital and labor.

The Progressive platform probably does not offer all that will be found necessary to a settlement of every injustice. No man or set of men can lay out in advance a flawless program. But the Progressive party would go forward. It recognizes the need of new measures; it offers a program of legislation feasible of enactment at the present time. If still further measures should be found necessary, after these had been adopted, no Progressive would hesitate still to go forward.

If, for instance, government control of corporations, after a fair trial, should be found insufficient to secure industrial justice, then the Progressive party would advocate government ownership and it would have secured, through its industrial commission, all the data necessary for the taking over of such industries as it might be found necessary to bring under government ownership.

Progressives do not believe government ownership is necessary. They believe present industrial ills can be cured by the remedies they propose. They advocate these remedies, not as an end in themselves, but only as necessary means towards the securing of social and industrial justice. And if stronger medicine is needed than that advocated by them, they would not hesitate to give it. But they would first demonstrate the need for the stronger medicine, which has not yet been compounded by applying the remedy already in the hands of the people.

The old parties have demonstrated their inability to deal with modern industrial evils. They don't even in their platforms recognize the fact that such evils exist. But they do exist, and the people are not for much longer going to be satisfied with mere revisions of the tariff. They will turn then to one or the other of the parties that does offer promise of better conditions.

The parties of the future are the Progressives and the Socialists, the party of evolution and the party of revolution. Fast as the Socialist party is growing, the Progressive party is growing faster still. There can be no doubt that the people of the United States, conservative as they are by habit and training, will prefer evolution to revolution.

Only if the Progressive party fails will a majority of the people of the United States turn to Socialism.

A "REBUKE," THAT FAILED

EASTERN suffragettes, to whom woman suffrage is rather an end in itself than a means to an end, attempted in the woman suffrage convention, now being held, to rebuke Miss Jane Addams for her recent participation in politics. Miss Addams was so inconsiderate of the feelings of such women as Mrs. Belmont of New York as to espouse the Progressive cause. If she had followed the example of Mrs. Borden Harriman, also of New York, in supporting Governor Wilson, doubtless there would have been no outcry.

But as it was, in order to point a warning against other women who might be tempted to follow Miss Addams into the Progressive camp, the New York contingent proposed an amendment prohibiting members of the suffrage association from affiliating with any political party, except in states already having woman suffrage.

The attempt to "rebuken" Miss Addams has proved a dismal failure. There was an overwhelming majority against the New York resolution. It is generally agreed, outside of New York, at least, that Miss Addams, in the past campaign, did more to advance the cause of woman suffrage than any other individual ever did before. She proved to all who heard her or read her speeches that she did not ask the vote merely for herself, but in order that she, having the vote, might help to secure social justice for the weak and oppressed.

She has placed the crusade for votes for women on a higher plane than it has ever occupied before, and the women showed their appreciation of what she has done for the cause when by a tremendous majority they defeated the resolution intended to rebuke her.

THE LAST REPUBLICAN SESSION

The Associated Press has entered the realms of prophecy. A dispatch from Washington says: Congress will reconvene a week from Monday for the last short session of Republican control in national legislation.

That word "last" is ominous. The Republican party is dead. Next session the Democrats will be in control. After that, unless the Democrats do better than they have ever done before, congress will be Progressive.

The last Republican session is soon to convene.

THE BRITISH AMBASSADOR

The resignation of James Bryce the British ambassador, removes from America the most distinguished man now in the diplomatic service. Mr. Bryce's appointment, from the instant it was announced, was recognized here and abroad as a most skillful and happy stroke of diplomacy, for the author of "The American Commonwealth" was accepted not as a mere formal agent of the foreign office of a friendly nation, but as an ambassador from one people to another.

Mr. Bryce had accomplished before his appointment one of the most difficult feats in literature. He had written about another people a book which is the accepted authority among that people on their own government, their system of laws, their social institutions, their practical administration of affairs; and he did it with such accuracy, so thorough a sympathy and with so much balance in the spirit of exact justice that "The American Commonwealth" was immediately accepted as the authoritative judgment of an impartial commentator. There is an air of finality about the work; inasmuch as the able and profoundly learned author had found after a most painstaking examination of the country, government and people that the virtue and vigor of the body politic on the whole much outweighed the defects, and that the great "American experiment" had, in a great measure, proved a success, his labors had the effect of causing Americans to have a juster pride in their republic and its institutions.

What Mr. Bryce did in his great book was to make an elaborate and thorough exposition of the government, and he did this with a clarity and a simplicity that any schoolboy can understand. He performed a vital service to this generation, because he has done more than any man living, and more, perhaps, than almost all other modern authors combined, to make intelligible to even intelligent Americans what their own government is, what it means, what its aims are, or should be, and how, under a benign measure of liberty regulated by law, this eager and heterogeneous people are to try to work out their destiny, so that government of the people shall not perish from the earth.

Mr. Bryce wrote this book after long study of America, and when he began it he possessed almost unequalled equipment and general qualifications for the task. Distinguished for his sanity, his common sense and his broad knowledge, he enjoyed the advantage of literary skill and what is much more important, a foundation and background of knowledge of English and American history, of jurisprudence of that age-long struggle for liberty in his own country as well as for the ancient and modern world, the human effort to establish freedom under a system of law and government that should make liberty safe and permanent and a precious blessing. If, of course, "The American Commonwealth" could by any conceivable means be required of American citizens as a prerequisite to the right to vote, we should have better government and a much more intelligently guided electorate.

It is, of course, no secret that strong criticism has been directed against Mr. Bryce at home by the opposition. He has been blamed for the reciprocity fiasco and of late it has been the custom to charge him with lukewarmness in his country's interest because the British contention with respect to Panama tolls has not been accepted by this government. This is a very unfair exhibition of party acerbity, because in these days the important business between America and England is conducted directly by the several administrations in power, and if there be any blame, the Asquith ministry must shoulder the responsibility. That the British government does not share the dissatisfaction with Bryce seems to be patent from the fact that he will remain at his post until the controversy relative to the Panama question has been settled.

Mr. Bryce's mission to this country has in the larger aspect been a complete and striking success in that it has softened the tone in this country of those who were formerly hostile to England by tradition, and the ambassador who can bring peoples closer occupies a position of usefulness in the grand scheme of world economy infinitely superior to the sharp trafficker whose worth is tested by the old notion that a diplomat was an honorable man sent abroad to lie for his country.

It is a kindly to be hoped that in choosing his successor the British government has selected one who to some degree can measure up to the mental stature, splendid equipment and distinguished qualities which characterize Ambassador Bryce.

MOTHS AND CHRISTMAS TREES.

From the Philadelphia Inquirer
In order to prevent the spread of such pests as the gypsy and the brown-tail moths the department of agriculture has ordered that shipment of Christmas trees from the New England states shall be prohibited for a time, except in cases where cuttings have been inspected by the government and declared to be free from these destroyers. The quarantine goes into effect on November 25.

Such news is calculated to send cold chills down the back of young America, in whom Christmas without a Christmas tree would be like a Thanksgiving dinner without turkey. But there is no need for the small boy to get worked up over the situation. There will be plenty of trees, for the reason that we are not dependent upon the region that is now taboo for our Christmas greens. Pennsylvania is full of them.

Indeed it appears that the order of the department is a wise one in a number of respects. Usually too many trees are brought into this section. The result in several years past has been that in order to maintain prices, thousands of trees have ruthlessly been burned after being received here. This has always appealed to thinking persons as a shameful waste and to conservationists who deplore the cutting of trees for Christmas purposes under any circumstances it has seemed even criminal.

We can do without New England's trees, especially if we have to take them with New England's moths. We are having enough trouble with our own pests, including the chestnut tree blight and the San Jose scale, without importing moths.

EXCUSE THESE TEARS.

Angus Acree, director of publicity, Alabama State Fair, in the Birmingham Age Herald
There is a sadness accompanying the breaking up of a fair especially one of the magnitude of the Alabama State fair. This thing of sadness was felt by every man, woman and child connected with the fair for the past 10 days. While all were glad that the strain, noise and confusion were over, the little regrets that "we must part" with those we knew for only a few days permeated each being and created this sadness.

An Injustice to Women

By RUTH CAMERON.

Woman is the weaker vessel, at least so everyone has been saying for the last million years or so, and yet again and again the weaker vessel is called upon to stand the greater strain.

I am thinking especially just now of the home services which working women are so frequently called upon to render. When a woman goes out into the business world and works all day long to earn her living, and turns in part of her wages to the family budget, she ought to receive the same immunity from home care which is given as a matter of course to her father and brothers.

And yet what one of us doesn't know of a dozen cases where women, just because they are women, and presumably the weaker vessel as we are asked to believe, are made to bear a double burden?

I know a young girl who works all day long for eight and a half hours a day in a very strenuous business office. She comes home utterly exhausted. Home ought to mean absolute rest to her, but it doesn't; she must stir her self on to the task of helping her mother get the supper and clear it away. A younger brother who is doing some easy office work which doesn't take half his energy is far more able to help than she, but no one ever thinks of expecting him to. I asked his mother once why Charlotte never helped her with the dishes and Charlotte never did. "Why, Charlotte is a boy," she said. "I should he!"

Again, at this very moment, I can think of two cases where women are working eight or nine hours a day in business offices and acting as convalescent nurses to some member of the family at night. In both cases there are male members of the family who, by reason of their being male, the stronger vessel, are considered immune from such work; and in both cases, although it might be a strain on the family finances to pay an attendant, there is no doubt that that would be done if the choice lay between that and asking the father or brother to do what the daughter is doing.

Sometimes women both married and unmarried, deliberately and unnecessarily put themselves in the position of having two jobs by their desire for extra spending money, then they have only themselves to blame for the overstrain that is sure to result. But quite as often they are unwillingly forced into this difficult position.

It is surely most unfortunate when conditions in a family are such that it is absolutely necessary that the wage earners should share the care of the household.

It is even more unfortunate when the family is so placed that a woman's slender shoulders while the male members of the family go burden-free.

Modern Inventions

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Slawh"

The thermometer is a sort of yard stick for measuring the weather.

By means of the thermometer we can tell whether it is hot or cold. The thermometer consists of a glass tube with a slit in it about as thin as a comic opera plot. The tube ends in a bulb in which a quantity of mercury is imprisoned. In warm weather the mercury expands and climbs to the top of the tube causing strokes, pros-traditions, huge ice bills and soft butter. In cold weather the mercury retreats into the bulb like a woodchuck hunting his hole and all traffic is paralyzed until it emerges again.

Before thermometers were invented it was very difficult to keep track of the weather. To find out how cold it was the scientist had to leave his ear outside the house. If the ear froze in a few minutes he could safely assume that he was in the bosom of a long, hard winter. The thermometer, however, has put the whole world onto the weather and has enabled man by a mere glance at the tube of faithful mercury to tell whether to wear a heavy winter cane or a thin spring stick.

The thermometer invented by a Mr. Fahrenheit is in general use in the United States while the Centigrade, a competing brand, is in high favor in Europe. The Fahrenheit thermometer has 180 degrees between freezing and boiling, while the Centigrade gets along with only 100. It is very difficult to translate Centigrade figures into United States and many tourists have frozen to death in very mild weather because they were unable to understand the Centigrade thermometer.

In the winter the thermometer frequently drops to 40 degrees below zero on the street and to 100 degrees below zero in the vicinity of the fine old families of Boston. In the summer it rises as high as 105 in the shade. A thermometer which has risen above 100 is very dangerous to health and should be carefully laid away in the ice box until it regains a normal temperature.

Thermometers are of great use in the sciences, but the ordinary wooden advertising thermometers with the mercury permanently painted at 70 degrees save a great deal of unnecessary coal shoveling and shivering.

HAS MONEY IN HATBAND; DIDN'T KNOW IT WAS THERE

DENVER, Nov. 25.—"Now, what do you think of that? I wonder how that money got there."

Thus exclaimed Malvin Yarnell, a butcher, aged 21, when Chief of Detectives John J. Leyden drew from under the band of his hat $20 in bills.

Yarnell had come to the police station with L. M. Colby, a friend, to report that their room in a Larimer street rooming house had been entered and their pockets emptied. Colby reported the loss of $35, while Yarnell claimed to have lost an Ingersoll watch.

Investigation by Detectives Cole and Maxwell convinced them that the room occupied by the two men could not have been entered from the outside. Their suspicions were confirmed when Yarnell remarked that the chief had overlooked $15 he had in his pockets. Deputy Chief Leyden, suspecting Yarnell, decided to search him, with the result that the money was found under his hatband.

"Honest, I didn't know the money was there," Yarnell declared amidst the laughter of the detectives.

"Are you a somnambulist?" Leyden asked Yarnell.

"I guess I must have walked in my sleep," Yarnell admitted. He was locked up on a grand larceny charge.

THE HASKIN LETTER

THE FISH INDUSTRY

IV. IN THE GREAT LAKES AND RIVERS

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

The Great Lakes and interior rivers materially add to the food fish supply of the nation by their products of fresh water fish which are in growing demand. No more delicate and appetizing fish is to be secured than the white fish of the Great Lakes, and the efforts now being made to increase their production are adding thousands of dollars in value to the annual income of the fishermen who work in these waters. There are a number of different kinds of white fish. In fact there is a noticeable difference to be found in the species from each of the Great Lakes. One of the peculiarities noticed is the difference in the depth of water in which each is found. For instance, the white fish of Lake Ontario have a water range of from 10 to 20 fathoms, while those of Lake Superior range from 10 to 60 fathoms in depth. These fish are more local in their habits than many other varieties and do not wander around at random. They migrate during the breeding season so that the spawn may be deposited in shallower water, but, during about eight months in the year the fisherman knowing their area is pretty certain of the best locality to cast his net.

A number of restrictive laws have been passed regarding the size of white fish which may be caught and sold, and the decrease which had become so great as to cause serious alarm to the fish culturists of the country, bids fair to be more than overcome by the efforts made to protect the fish. The Canadian and American governments are cooperating in a number of measures calculated to advance the white fish industries upon these lake waters which are common to both. There are numbers of hatcheries which hatch the eggs, which the fishermen furnish, and the small fish thus secured are distributed to the lakes, thus greatly augmenting the supply that would naturally develop. Usually the white fish are comparatively small, ranging from three to five pounds, although occasionally comes the "big fish" story, like the one recently circulated at the Illinois fish association annual meeting when a white fish over three feet long was reported.

Whole white fish is regarded as the most important of the Great Lakes fishing products, the bass, sturgeon, perch, herring, carp, buffalo fish and several others give variety to the supply which is sent to the inland markets each day. They are sent fresh in large quantities while the facilities for salting and smoking them near the shores of the waters from which they come are being added to continually. The fishing begins in the spring as soon as the water is sufficiently free from ice and continues until heavy ice is formed in the winter. The season therefore varies in length.

On Lake Superior, the fishing industry employs about 1,500 men, about two-thirds of whom are employed upon the boats in catching the fish and the balance in handling it for the markets. The equipment includes small boats, gasoline launches, fishing gear and transporting vessels, and different kinds of nets. During the fishing season, most of the fishermen and their families camp on some of the small islands near the fishing grounds. These islands are not connected with the main land by cable so that their only communication is by steamers or small boats. There are no stores or post-offices at these small fishing villages, but the steamers visit them regularly carrying mail and supplies. Several fishing clubs have their headquarters on these islands. The log cabins of the fishermen, the more pretentious camps belonging to the club men, and several attractive summer hotels, have made some of them attractive places during the summer season. At the end of October, the fishermen move their families home to prepare for the next season and the islands are practically deserted.

Produces $2,000,000 Annually.

The fisheries of Lake Michigan are divided among the states of Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan and Indiana, and last year their products approximate $2,000,000 in value. About 5,000 persons were employed altogether, about half of whom were engaged in the shore or boat fisheries, about 600 upon the large vessels and the balance, as shore men, the fishery trade of this lake is divided between Chicago and Green Bay, Wisconsin and consists of fresh, salted, and smoked products. Lobsters and crawfish are an important item among the fish of this locality and oyster and clams are also secured in large quantities. The most valuable fish taken from Lake Huron are trout and walleye pike. Lake Huron trout are acknowledged high quality and range from five to eight pounds in weight. The greater part of the fish handled by wholesale dealers along the lake is caught upon waters within the American boundaries, but a considerable amount of sturgeon and caviar handles comes from the Canadian waters.

A number of fisheries along Lake St. Clair and the Detroit and St. Clair rivers supply some valuable food fish. A considerable portion of the work of these is in set line fishing for sturgeon, which is active in April and May, although about three-fourths of the catch of these waters is that of walleye pike. The fisheries of Lake Erie, Lake Ontario and of the Niagara are St. Lawrence rivers practically produce the same varieties of fish as those of the other lakes. The largest investment in the lake fisheries upon the part of any one state is made by Illinois, chiefly because of the extensive wholesale fish commerce centering at Chicago. Michigan produces the largest yield of fish.

Stock Inland Streams.

The stocking of the inland rivers with fish has now reached a stage of practical value. In the Mississippi river the buffalo fish have been introduced in sufficient quantities to make a notable addition to the catch during the past five years. In a number of the states, trout are being introduced in considerable quantities by different agencies. The Pennsylvania railroad has undertaken the responsibility of introducing trout to three of the larger streams of that state to replace those which have practically become extinct. The new trout which are being used to stock the streams are of a larger breed than the former brood trout although it is believed that the flavor will be equally fine.

There have been severe losses in the inland fishing products during the past two years because of the heavy floods. During last summer, unusually large quantities of fish were carried out of the main streams by the high water and then were left to die when the water receded or dried-up in the low lands.

Complaints have been also coming from different states about fish dying in the smaller lakes and streams. The cause has been traced to vegetable poisoning partially due to the extremely hot weather which destroyed the form of vegetation known as algae, which grows in fresh water. Most of this was near the shore so that the fish which were in deeper water escaped. Some of the best fishing grounds have suffered most severely in parts of Pennsylvania chemicals which were put in the water to destroy the "algae" have also destroyed

According to the report of the referee filed last month, Hollingsworth advanced funds for Tufts to inspect Mexican mines with a view to investment.

Tufts returned with glowing reports and a syndicate was formed comprising Tufts, Hollingsworth and three others.

A group of claims was taken out but later survived and proved worthless.

Dr. Hollingsworth and another member of the syndicate then visited Mexico and secured an option on a mine and later a mid was erected on the site.

Tufts then returned to Kansas City and secured money from Hollingsworth and went to New York City where he organized a mining company with a capitalization of $250,000.

1908 he organized the Grand Union Mining Co. with a capitalization of $100,000 and was elected president of the company.

Stock to the amount of $8,000,000 was issued, the property was transferred to the company and Tufts secured stock in mine to $4,000,000.

A controversy arose over the issuance of the stock. Dr. Hollingsworth declared that he is entitled to one-half the stock issued to Tufts or $2,000,000 in shares.

Clymer Williams of Tennessee, who forged check for $50 on the Alamo hotel, and August Benning of Troy, N. S. Morris.

Williams is a traveling man and forged his check, he said, after a spree in order to get back to his headquarters at Kansas City. He said he intended to make the money good as soon as he reached Kansas City, but he was caught before he could get away.

Benning lost his earnings gambling with Mexicans at Palmer Lake and forged a check for $100 on the foreman of his gang.

ASK FOR COOPERATION IN PROVIDING DINNERS
The school children of Colorado Springs have given to the Associated Charities a large quantity of vegetables, flour, canned goods, fruits, jellies and other delicacies for Thanksgiving dinners for the poor. The baskets will be filled and sent to the homes on Wednesday. An effort is being made to see that no one family shall receive two baskets coming from different sources. It is hoped that those expecting to send dinners to any one, will send word to the Associated Charities, so that if they have a basket for that particular family, theirs can be given to someone else.

A telephone inquiry as to whether or not your family is on the list will bring the desired information. Last year, in spite of everything that could be done, there were instances where a family that the Associated Charities sent a basket to received a basket from another source, while some families did not receive any. If anyone knows of a family that will not have a Thanksgiving dinner, the Associated Charities will appreciate it if you will give them the name and address.

The Associated Charities is asking for contributions so that it may send either a turkey or chicken with each basket. Any contribution made will help greatly in the family's joy on Thanksgiving day.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1912.

EVOLUTION OR REVOLUTION

IN 1908 the Socialist vote for president was 420,464. In 1912 it was nearly 800,000.

This remarkable increase almost 100 per cent occurred in spite of the fact that the Progressive party this year had adopted a program far more radical than had ever been adopted before by any except the Socialist party. It had been supposed the Progressives would attract many who otherwise would have voted the Socialist ticket.

The election of 1912 showed that the Socialist party in the United States has reached a point where it must be reckoned with in future elections. It is constantly increasing in strength; there is no indication that it has reached its maximum growth.

There is a reason for the growth of the Socialist party. That reason lies in the injustice of our modern industrial organization. A few have much; many have nothing—and that makes for Socialism.

Just as there is a reason for Socialism, so there is a cure. Socialism cannot be stopped by persecution, nor by the calling of names. It can be stopped only by the doing of justice to all men.

The revision of the tariff and the restoration of competition will not stop Socialism. The unjust treatment of workmen exists in the Colorado Fuel & Iron company's plant at Pueblo, a competitor of the steel trust just as it exists in the trust's own plants in Pennsylvania and Illinois. Labor is oppressed in free trade England just as it is in protected Germany.

Socialism frankly seeks revolution. It has been quite essentially a destructive party. Its leaders have not yet elaborated, in detail, the steps that would have to be taken in order that the people themselves might take possession of industry.

America is not yet ripe for Socialism but unless conditions are changed soon, and for the better, the revolution for which all Socialists are working will come. It probably will be a bloodless revolution—a revolution of ballots—but it will be none the less a revolution. And, coming suddenly, finding the people unprepared, it will go to excesses, and in the inevitable reaction most of the gain will be lost.

Socialism is revolution, but the Progressive party program is evolution. Revolution or evolution the people will have. If there is no evolution, there will inevitably be revolution. The Progressive party has a program that aims to remedy injustices. It aims to protect labor; it would restrain the power of capital; it would provide for a more just distribution of the product of capital and labor.

The Progressive platform probably does not offer all that will be found necessary to a settlement of every injustice. No man or set of men can lay out in advance a flawless program. But the Progressive party would go forward. It recognizes the need of new measures; it offers a program of legislation feasible of enactment at the present time. If still further measures should be found necessary, after these had been adopted, no Progressive would hesitate still to go forward.

If, for instance, government control of corporations, after a fair trial, should be found insufficient to secure industrial justice, then the Progressive party would advocate government ownership; and it would have secured, through its industrial commission, all the data necessary for the taking over of such industries as it might be found necessary to bring under government ownership.

Progressives do not believe government ownership is necessary. They believe present industrial ills can be cured by the remedies they propose. They advocate these remedies, not as an end in themselves, but only as necessary means towards the securing of social and industrial justice. And if stronger medicine is needed than that advocated by them, they would not hesitate to give it. But they would first demonstrate the need for the stronger medicine, which has not yet been compounded by applying the remedy already in the hands of the people.

The old parties have demonstrated their inability to deal with modern industrial evils. They don't even in their platforms recognize the fact that such evils exist. But they do exist, and the people are not for much longer going to be satisfied with mere revisions of the tariff. They will turn then to one or the other of the parties that does offer promise of better conditions.

The parties of the future are the Progressives and the Socialists—the party of evolution and the party of revolution. Fast as the Socialist party is growing, the Progressive party is growing faster still. There can be no doubt but that the people of the United States, conservative as they are by habit and training, will prefer evolution to revolution.

Only if the Progressive party fails will a majority of the people of the United States turn to Socialism.

A "REBUKE" THAT FAILED

EASTERN suffragettes, to whom woman suffrage is rather an end in itself than a means to an end, attempted in the woman suffrage convention, now being held, to rebuke Miss Jane Addams for her recent participation in politics. Miss Addams was so inconsiderate of the feelings of such women as Mrs. Belmont of New York as to espouse the Progressive cause. If she had followed the example of Mrs. Borden Harriman, also of New York, in supporting Governor Wilson, doubtless there would have been no outcry.

But as it was, in order to point a warning against other women who might be tempted to follow Miss Addams into the Progressive camp, the New York contingent proposed an amendment prohibiting members of the suffrage association from affiliating with any political party, except in states already having woman suffrage.

The attempt to "rebuken" Miss Addams has proved a dismal failure. There was an overwhelming majority against the New York resolution. It is generally agreed, outside of New York, at least, that Miss Addams, in the past campaign, did more to advance the cause of woman suffrage than any other individual ever did before. She proved to all who heard her or read her speeches that she did not ask the vote merely for herself, but in order that she, having the vote, might help to secure social justice for the weak and oppressed.

She has placed the crusade for votes for women on a higher plane than it has ever occupied before, and the women showed their appreciation of what she has done for the cause when by a tremendous majority they defeated the resolution intended to rebuke her.

THE LAST REPUBLICAN SESSION

The Associated Press has entered the realms of prophecy: A dispatch from Washington says: "Congress will reconvene a week from Monday for the last short session of Republican control in national legislation."

That word "last" is ominous. The Republican party is dead. Next session the Democrats will be in control. After that, unless the Democrats do better than they have ever done before, congress will be Progressive.

The last Republican session is soon to convene.

THE BRITISH AMBASSADOR

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.
The resignation of James Bryce, the British ambassador, removes from America the most distinguished man now in the diplomatic service. Mr. Bryce's appointment, from the instant it was announced, was recognized here and abroad as a most skillful and happy stroke of diplomacy, for the author of "The American Commonwealth" was accepted not as a mere formal agent of the foreign office of a friendly nation, but as an ambassador from one people to another.

Mr. Bryce had accomplished before his appointment one of the most difficult tasks in literature. He had shown to the people of this country, in the accepted authority among that people on their own government, their system of laws, their social institutions, their practical administration of affairs; and he did it with such accuracy, so thorough a sympathy and with so much balance in the spirit of exact justice that "The American Commonwealth" was immediately accepted as the authoritative judgment of an impartial commentator. There is an air of finality about the work; inasmuch as the able and profoundly learned author had found after a most painstaking examination of the country, government and people that the view and view of the body politic on the whole American outweighed the defects and that the great "American experiment" had, in a great measure, proved a success, his labors had the effect of causing Americans to have a juster pride in their republic and its institutions.

What Mr. Bryce did in his great book was to make an elaborate and thorough exposition of the government, and he did this with a clarity and a simplicity that any schoolboy can understand. He performed a vital service to this generation, because he has done more for any man living, and more, perhaps, than almost all other modern authors combined, to make the people of this country understand what their own government is, what it means what its aims are, or should be, and how, under a benign measure of liberty regulated by law, this eager and heterogeneous people are to try to work out their destiny, so that government of the people shall not perish from the earth.

Mr. Bryce wrote this book after long study of America, and when he began it he possessed almost unequalled equipment and general qualifications for the task. Distinguished for his sanity, his common sense and his broad knowledge, he enjoyed the advantage of literary skill, and what is much more important, a foundation and background of knowledge of English and American history, of jurisprudence of that age-long struggle for liberty in his own country as well as in the ancient and modern world; the human effort to establish freedom under a system of law and government that should make liberty safe and permanent, and a precious blessing. If perusal of "The American Commonwealth" could by any conceivable means be required of American citizens as a prerequisite to the right to vote, we should have a better government and a much more intelligently ruled electorate.

It is, of course, no secret that strong criticism has been directed against Mr. Bryce at home by the opposition. He has been blamed for the reciprocity fiasco, and of late it has been the custom to charge him with lukewarmness in his country's interest because the British contention with respect to Panama tolls has not been accepted by this government. This is but an exhibition of party acerbity, because in these days the important business between America and England is conducted directly by the several administrations in power, and if there be any blame, the American ministry must shoulder the responsibility. That the British government does not share the dissatisfaction with Bryce seems to be patent from the fact that he will remain at his post until the controversy relative to the Panama question has been settled.

Mr. Bryce's mission to this country has in the larger aspect been a complete and striking success in that it has softened the tone in this country of those who were formerly hostile to England by tradition; and the ambassador who can bring peace and good will occupies a position of usefulness in the grand scheme of world economy infinitely superior to the sharp trafficker whose worth is tested by the old notion that "a diplomat was an honorable man sent abroad to live for his country."

It is ardently to be hoped that in choosing his successor the British government has selected one who to some degree can measure up to the mental stature, splendid equipment and distinguished qualities which characterize Ambassador Bryce.

MOTHS AND CHRISTMAS TREES

From the Philadelphia Inquirer.
In order to prevent the spread of such pests as the cynipid and the brown-tail moth, the department of agriculture has ordered that shipment of Christmas trees from the New England states shall be prohibited from a time, except in cases where cuttings have been inspected by the government and declared to be free from these destroyers. The quarantine goes into effect on November 25.

Such news is calculated to send cold chills down the back of Young America, to whom Christmas without a Christmas tree would be like a Thanksgiving dinner without turkey. But there is no need for the small boy to get worked up over the situation. There will be plenty of trees for the reason that we are not dependent upon the region that is now taboo for our Christmas greens. Pennsylvania is full of them.

Indeed, it appears that the order of the department is a wise one in a number of respects. Usually too many trees are brought into this section. The result in several years past has been that, in order to maintain prices, thousands of trees have ruthlessly been burned after being received here. This has always appealed to thinking persons as a shameful waste, and to conservationists who deplore the cutting of trees for Christmas purposes under any circumstances it has seemed even criminal.

We can do without New England's trees, especially if we have to take them with New England's moths. We are having enough trouble with our own pests, including the chestnut tree blight and the San Jose scale, without importing moths.

Modern Inventions

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Slush"

The thermometer is a sort of yard stick for measuring the weather. By means of the thermometer we can tell whether it is hot or cold. The thermometer consists of a glass tube with a slit in it about as thin as a comic opera plot. The tube ends in a bulb in which a quantity of mercury is imprisoned. In warm weather the mercury expands and climbs to the top of the tube causing sunstrokes, protrations, huge ice bills and soft butter. In cold weather the mercury retreats in the bulb like a woodchuck hunting his hole and all traffic is paralyzed until it emerges again.

Before thermometers were invented it was very difficult to keep track of the weather. To find out how cold it was the scientist had to leave his car outside the house. If the car froze in a few minutes he could safely assume that he was in the bosom of a long, hard winter. The thermometer, however, has put the whole world into the weather and has enabled man by a mere glance at the tube of faithful mercury to tell whether to wear a heavy winter cane or a thin spring stick.

The thermometer invented by a Mr. Fahrenheit is in general use in the United States, while the Centigrade, a competing brand, is in high favor in Europe. The Fahrenheit thermometer has 180 degrees between freezing and boiling, while the Centigrade gets along with only 100. It is very difficult to translate Centigrade figures into Fahrenheit and many tourists have frozen to death in very mild weather because they were unable to understand the Centigrade thermometer.

In the winter the thermometer frequently drops to 40 degrees below zero on the street and to 100 degrees below zero in the vicinity of the fine old families of Boston. In the summer it rises as high as 105 in the shade. A thermometer which has risen above 100 is very dangerous to health and should be carefully laid away in the ice box until it regains a normal temperature.

Thermometers are of great use in the sciences, but the ordinary wooden advertising thermometers with the mercury permanently painted at 70 degrees, save a great deal of unnecessary cold shivering and shivering.

HAS MONEY IN HATBAND; DIDN'T KNOW IT WAS THERE

DENVER, Nov. 25.—"Now what do you think of that? I wonder how that money got there."

Thus exclaimed Melvin Yarnell, a butcher, when Chief of Detectives John J. Leyden drew from under the band of his hat $20 in bills. Yarnell had come to the police station with L. M. Colby, a friend, to report that their room in a Larimer street rooming house had been entered and their pockets emptied. Colby reported the loss of $35, while Yarnell claimed to have lost an innerroll.

Investigation by Detectives Cole and Maxwell convinced them that the room occupied by the two men could not have been entered from the outside. Their suspicions were confirmed when Yarnell remarked that the thief had overlooked $15 he had in his pockets. Deputy Chief Leyden, suspecting Yarnell, decided to search him, with the result that the money was found under his hatband.

"I don't know the money was there," Yarnell declared amidst the laughter of the detectives.

"Are you a somnambulist?" Leyden asked Yarnell.

"I guess I must have walked in my sleep," Yarnell admitted. He was locked up on a grand larceny charge.

THE HASKIN LETTER

THE FISH INDUSTRY

IV. IN THE GREAT LAKES AND RIVERS

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

The Great Lakes and Interior Rivers

materially add to the food fish supply of the nation by their products of fresh water fish which are in growing demand. No more delicate and appetizing fish is to be secured than the white fish of the Great Lakes, and the efforts now being made to increase their production are adding thousands of dollars in value to the annual income of the fishermen who work in these waters. There are a number of different kinds of white fish. In fact there is a noticeable difference to be found in the species from each of the Great Lakes. One of the peculiarities noticed is the difference in the depth of water in which each is found. For instance, the white fish of Lake Ontario have a water range of from 10 to 20 fathoms, while those of Lake Superior range from 10 to 50 fathoms. These fish are more local in their habits than many other varieties and do not wander around at random. They migrate during the breeding season so that the spawn may be deposited in shallower water, but, during about eight months in the year the fisherman knowing their area is pretty certain of the best locality to cast his net.

A number of restrictive laws have been passed regarding the size of white fish which may be caught and sold, and the decrease which has become so great as to cause serious alarm to the fish culturists of the country, bids fair to be more than overcome by the efforts made to protect the fish. The Canadian and American governments are cooperating in a number of measures calculated to advance the white fish industries upon these lake waters which are common to both. There are numbers of hatcheries which hatch the eggs, while the fishermen furnish the small fish thus secured are distributed to the lakes, thus greatly augmenting the supply that would naturally develop. Usually the white fish are comparatively small, ranging from three to five pounds, although occasionally comes the "big fish" story, like the one recently circulated at the Illinois Fish association annual meeting when a white fish over three feet long was reported.

Variety for Markets

While white fish is regarded as the most important of the Great Lakes fishing products, the bass, sturgeon, perch, herring, carp, buffalo fish and several others give variety to the supply which is sent to the inland markets each day. They are sent fresh in large quantities while the facilities for salting and smoking them near the shores of the waters from which they come are being added to continually. The fishing begins in the spring as soon as the water is sufficiently free from ice and continues until heavy ice is to be met in the fall. The season therefore varies in length.

On Lake Superior the fishing industry employs about 1,000 men, about 75,000 of whom are employed upon the boats in catching the fish and the balance in handling it for the markets. The equipment includes small boats, gasoline launches, fishing and transporting vessels and different kinds of nets. During the fishing season most of the fishermen and their families camp on some of the small islands near the fishing grounds. These islands are not connected with the mainland by cable so that their only communication is by steamer or small boats. There are no stores or postoffices at these small fishing villages, but the steamers visit them regularly carrying mail and supplies. Several fishing clubs have their headquarters on these islands. The log cabins of the fishermen, the more pretentious camps belonging to the club men, and several attractive summer hotels, have

Stock Inland Streams

The stocking of the inland river with fish has now reached a stage of practical value. In the Mississippi river the buffalo fish have been introduced in sufficient quantities to produce a notable addition to the catch during the past five years. In a number of the states, trout are being introduced in considerable quantities by different agencies. The Pennsylvania railroad has undertaken the responsibility of introducing trout to three of the largest streams of that state to replace those which have practically become extinct. This is done by means of a larger breed than the former brood trout although it is believed that the flavor will be equally fine.

There have been severe losses in the inland fishing products during the past two years because of the heavy flood. During last summer, unusually large quantities of fish were carried out of the river streams by the high water and much of it was lost to the water. The water receded and dried up in the lands. Complaints have been also coming from different states about fish dying in the smaller lakes and streams. The cause has been traced to vegetable poisoning partially due to the extent of weather which destroyed the form of vegetation known as "algae" which is often found in water. Most of this was near the shore so that fish which were in deeper water escaped. Some of the best fishing grounds have suffered most severely in parts of Pennsylvania, where the "algae" have also destroyed several attractive summer hotels, have

At The Theater

"THE CONFESSION" AT THE OPERA HOUSE

Consistency and honest value is appreciated at all times and in all things. It is the slogan which, when practiced in commercial life and in business, always brings best results. This rule applies to the theater as well, and in the logic and philosophy that James Hallett Reid has used in writing his play, "The Confession," which will be appeal to the theater-goers and be welcomed by them as a treat, coupled with the opportunity of witnessing this offering, interpreted by a cast of rare ability, actors of note, whose names stand for everything good dramatically.

Mr. Reid has chosen his cast with the greatest care, holding back the presentation of his masterpiece until he could obtain just the artists he desired, many of which, previously to this time, being otherwise engaged.

"The Confession" enjoyed a long and successful run at the Bijou theater, Broadway, New York city, and has met with tremendous success while on tour.

SOMETHING NEW IN MOTION PICTURES AT THE OPERA HOUSE

Commencing with a matinee this afternoon and running tonight, Wednesday afternoon and Thanksgiving afternoon only, Manager Nye of the Opera House has secured the Hagenbeck & Wallace circus pictures, direct from a five weeks' run at the Whitney theater, in Chicago, where they have been doing a record-breaking business.

In these pictures we see the circus just as it was given in all the large cities of the east last season. First seen at the Grand Opera house next Friday and Saturday, with a special matinee Saturday afternoon.

RICHARD STERLING AND GEORGE MANNING, in "The Confession," at Grand Opera House, Two Days, Friday and Saturday, November 29 and 30.

Mr. Reid has used in his play life's most absorbing topic, and still not a line of his manuscript would offend. There is an uplift in his play, a great lesson, a cause, a reason, a powerful dramatic story.

We have had so many plays recently that depended upon either their vulgarity, the lewd or sensational, for success, that a play depending purely upon its dramatic worth, consistency of plot and power of purpose should come the advertising car, two weeks ahead of the show. Then comes the circus on three special trains. The loading, the putting up of the tents, the moving meal in the mess tent, in which they feed 700 people; the big tents going up, the animals being fed, everyone getting ready for the big street parade, the noon meal, and all the performers getting ready for the afternoon performance. The performance is given in full on the screen and, after the hippo race, the crowd is seen leaving the grounds.

It took three men four weeks to get

"BOUGHT AND PAID FOR" AT THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE

"Bought and Paid For" is a play directed from William A. Brady's playhouse, New York city, to San Diego, Cal., a distance of over 4,000 miles, in order to be the opening attraction of the beautiful Spreckels theater, in that city, going from there to the Majestic theater, in Los Angeles, and coming direct to us from a three weeks' stay at the Cort theater, San Francisco, where it was received with the same enthusiasm which marked its long run of a year at Mr. Brady's New York theater.

O. M. Young of the Los Angeles Record, in his criticism of "Bought and Paid For," during its engagement at the Majestic theater in that city, says: "A scorching sermon of the times was preached at the Majestic theater Sunday night, through the medium of the Broadhurst vehicle, 'Bought and Paid For,' and it was put across the footlights with a punchy characteristic of that versatile playwright. It was at once a biting satire on the mode of living of the man whose idol is the 'golden calf,' and the reminder of that tragedy of the American home, drink. If there was a man in that great Majestic audience who is so prone as to give himself up to the cause, he may have seen himself and those who depend on him mirrored in the character of the place. 'Bought and Paid For' is a virile and gripping, though, perhaps, distasteful in its candor, at times. The story is a poor, but ambitious 'Hello' girl, who marries, for convenience, a man of wealth, with the inevitable result that, despite her haubies and luxury, she tastes the dregs of unhappiness. Her wealthy husband is satisfied and pleasant until he comes on the periodical spree, then he is changed with the thoughts of the 'golden calf' uppermost in his mind. He reminds his wife that he has bought and paid for her with the coin of the realm, and seeks to collect his debt; but she surprises him by leaving, preferring the humble life of the shop toiler to the bird in the gilded cage. The cast is an excellent one. The play is well worth seeing.

LAST TIMES AT ASKA-STEREIA PICTURES AT THE PRINCESS

Today matinee and evening will be the last presentation of the Carnegie Alaska-Siberia motion pictures which are being seen at the Princess theater. The following is a great advertisement for these wonderful pictures:

Denver, Colo., Oct. 9, 1912.

To whom it may concern:

As a member of the board of education of the city and county of Denver, it gives me great pleasure to recommend to the public, and especially to all school children in the state, the Alaska-Siberia motion pictures.

These pictures for the past three weeks have been on exhibition at the Broadway theater in this city and have been duly attended by the public and have afforded the children of our city an opportunity to see the remarkable pictures which were so realistic that one could feel that they had almost been on the Alaska-Siberia expedition in the polar regions. From an educational standpoint they are the best pictures and most instructive that have ever been produced and they are especially adaptable from an educational standpoint because they show the exact and realistic situation of Alaska and Siberia. These pictures have been especially approved by the board of education of this city. The representatives of these pictures are high class business men and thorough-up reliable.

Very truly yours,
JOHN W. GILLESPIE, Supt.
W. A. E. SULL, Secretary.

PERSINGER TO GIVE A SECOND CONCERT

There have been many disappointed people in Colorado Springs, who were not able to get tickets for the concert last night, and to those it will be welcome news that Mr. Persinger will give another concert next Monday evening at the Burns at popular prices. The Musical Club wished to give Mr. Persinger two engagements and at the same time wished it to be possible for everyone who wanted to hear Persinger to do so. This brought about the second concert at prices of 25c, 50c, 75c and $1. Although the first announcement of the second concert was made yesterday, there has been a good sale already, and this concert bids fair to be as well attended as the record-breaking concert of last night.

Too much cannot be said of Persinger's splendid musicianship, and the unanimous decision of those present last night was in agreement with the most nearly unanimous approval upon him in Europe and in the cities of the east.

Colorado Springs has been eager to give honor to her own son who has become since his last visit three years ago, one of the world's notable men.

GOLD DUST

Remove grease quickly from pots and pans

Cleaning the pots and pans and kettles is usually a most disagreeable piece of work, but like everything else there is an easier way to do it, if one knows how.

As soon as the food is removed, pour in water and dissolve in it Gold Dust in the proportion of one tablespoonful to a gallon of water.

Leave to soak while washing the dishes, then pour off the water and fill with clean suds made in the same way. If particles of food still adhere to the inside of the utensils, use pottingers for removing them.

INDIANS ON BIG HUNT SLAUGHTER ELK AND DEER

MEER, Colo., Nov. 25.—Marauding Indians are slaughtering great quantities of elk and deer in the Rangely district, according to ranchers arriving in Meeker. The bands are also said to have begun stealing calves and defying cattlemen, despite the recent trip of Wardens Wear of Meeker and Gilmer of Glenwood Springs along the Colorado-Utah line.

The invaders, under the guidance of War Chief Red Moon, are divided into several bands, with the result that the section is being rapidly cleaned of the antlered animals.

In their depredations the Indians have become much bolder than usual, for realizing that they are protectors of the government, the ranchers dare not make any untoward move in their effort to stop them.

Their activities at present are confined mainly to the Douglas creek country. W. H. Caywood, who returned from that section yesterday, said he ran across at least a half dozen bands of the red men, and that each camp bore evidences of recent killings.

The Indians' big hunt usually occurs at this time of year.

COUNCIL MEETS FRIDAY TO ACT ON TRANSFER

Mayor P. J. Hamble announced yesterday that a special meeting of the city council will be called for Friday evening in order to transact necessary business in connection with the transfer of the interest of Anthony Bott in the Bott and Becker water system from Bott to the city. By the terms of Bott's gift to the city, which was announced some time ago, the town is to take charge of the water system December 1. This makes it necessary for the city this week to choose representatives on the board which will have control of the water system.

Lee Becker, of La Jara, Colo., administrator of the Becker estate, arrived here yesterday to represent the estate in any transaction affecting the transfer. The Becker estate holds one-fourth of the shares in the water system, Bott holding the other three-fourths.

The system, which supplies the entire south side of the city, includes, besides all the pipe lines, 30 acres of land at the headwaters of Sutherland creek, together with ditch and reservoir rights on that creek. Bott's share, which he is giving to the city, is valued at approximately $75,000.

ROGER BRESNAHAN GIVEN UNCONDITIONAL RELEASE

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 25.—Roger Bresnahan was unconditionally released as manager of the St. Louis National league baseball team by Mrs. Helen B. Britton, principal owner of the club, who did not think he tried hard during the year, and because the team lost money, according to a letter Bresnahan's attorneys prepared today to submit to the directors of the National league.

The letter gives Bresnahan's side of the final conference, and quotes Mrs. Britton as saying:

"I have decided to make a change in managers, and will not need your services any more. I feel that you have not tried hard during the past year. The club has not made nearly as much money as it did in 1911. You do not seem to take much interest in the club."

The letter also gives President Jones of the club as authority for the statement that the club earned $15,000 this year. Jones offered Bresnahan $2,500 for his contract, which calls for $10,000 annually, and 10 per cent of the profits. Jones, however, the letter continues, refused to pay Bresnahan his percentage of this year's profits unless he would surrender his contract, which has four years to run.

CAPONI-PETTUS DRAW

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Nov. 25.—In a 10-round bout here tonight, Tony Caponi, the Chicago middleweight, and Bill Pettus, a local light heavyweight, fought 10 tame rounds to a draw. Caponi, however, outpointed Pettus, who was wild and nervous, falling repeatedly when missing wild swings. Caponi won the popular decision by his aggressiveness and clever defensive work. It was announced at the ring-side that Caponi had been matched to fight Jack Dillon 20 rounds at New Orleans in December.

FOGEL CASE UP TODAY

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25.—Before leaving for New York today, where he will attend the meeting of the National league tomorrow, at which the Fogel case will be taken up, Horace S. Fogel, president of the Philadelphia club, denied emphatically having made the statements attributed to him.

Fogel said that if it is true, as he is led to believe, that several New York newspaper men have sworn to affidavits that he said, "the National league was fixed for the Giants to win," he will prefer a charge of perjury against them in court.

BRAIN AND DISPOSITION ARE PITCHERS' ESSENTIALS

By BILLY EVANS.

All things, being apparently equal, why are some pitchers so much superior to others? Watch them during the warm-up periods, and there appears to be little if any difference in the speed and curves. But then into the game and the difference immediately asserts itself. It is the brain and the disposition that makes the difference between the great and the ordinary pitcher.

Lots of people labor under the impression that speed, curves and strength are the necessary requisites of a great pitcher. True, few pitchers acquire greatness unless they have plenty of speed and a good curve, yet those two assets are far from being the most essential. I know any number of pitchers who possess terrific speed, who are the masters of an assortment of puzzling curves, yet they are only mediocre when put to the test. I could name a dozen pitchers who appear to have nothing, yet they are classed as really great twirlers.

A brain that is able to think quickly, a heart of oak and a good disposition are even more essential to good pitching than speed and curves. There are lots of twirlers who are unthinkably slow when sent to the mound. There are many pitchers who are as timid as a cat as long as the bases are empty, but as soon as the sacks get populated, many go along smoothly just so long as their support remains intact, but a few errors will cause them to establish new altitude records. These pitchers have the speed, the curves and the strength to be stars, but something more essential is lacking.

Pitchers must be able to do something besides getting the ball over the plate. In fact, great pitchers who are successful like to get the ball over by the narrowest margin possible. They much prefer making the batter hit and not just fair balls instead of serving him crumples, as balls through the heart of the plate are called. Pitchers who are successful to a large degree owe their success to making the batter hit something he doesn't like. It is the good pitcher who can make the batsman accept something he doesn't want.

Much of Christy Mathewson's great success has been due to his heart and brain as much as his bravado, yes, even more. Matty is not hard to hit, play-ers will tell you, when the sacks are empty, but he is the most difficult puzzle in the world when a hit means something. Despite the fact that he failed to win a single game in the recent world's series, the work of Matty stood out as a shining light. In his 6-to-11-inning tie, he proved conclusively that a great pitcher must have a stout heart. Under the most discouraging conditions, he never faltered. His support wobbled in practically every inning. A number of the troubles were caused by the fact that he was run getting. Others were overcome by Mathewson's magnificent work in the box. Never once did he ease up, never once did he turn and censure any of the players who by their errors were making his task well nigh impossible. Matty proved that he had a heart of oak.

Masterly Pitching Exhibition.

The game was played Thursday. Conditions were such that Manager McGraw was forced to ask Matty to come back Saturday. Two days' rest is hardly enough for a veteran like Matty, who has put his arm to so many severe tests. Willingly he accepted the job, but Wednesday in his warm-up, he looked tired and didn't seem to have his usual stuff. I thought to myself, "he will never be able to get away with this after-noon." Boston hit him rather hard in the first and second innings, but failed to score. In the third, two triples and an error gave Boston two runs. "It is asking too much of Matty," I thought. Then came the wonderful exhibition of pitching. The next 18 men were retired in order. Matty realized his stuff was lacking, he began pitching carefully. He would drive the fellow back who was hazing the plate with a high fast one, then slip over a couple of slow curves on the outside. His control was almost perfect. He kept the ball just where the batter didn't like it. It was a pitching performance that must go down in history.

Late this fall, Washington hammered him for four runs in two innings. Mack had a pitcher warned up to replace him. As he started to the bench at the close of the inning, Manager Griffith jokingly yelled: "Put the blanket on him, Connie, and send him to the barn." He was a good old wagon, but he done broke down. The remark nettled Plank. He insisted that Mack let him remain in the game. For the next 16 innings he blunted the Nationals, and lost in the nineteenth inning because of an error. It is little incidents like that that explain the difference between the great and the ordinary pitcher.

Foreigners Perform Heroic Service.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 25.—A group of American and English volunteers are working energetically at the cholera camp at San Stefano, where a Greek school has been converted into a hospital. The Rev. Dr. Ercow, a Scotch pastor, Major Surgeon Ford, U. S. Army, Clyde S. Phillips, secretary of the American embassy, and Maurice Baring, dressed in soldiers' overalls and jackets, and Miss Alt and Mrs. Schneider, both aged and frail, comprise the party. Dr. Ercow's Greek servant is acting as interpreter. The minister with a twinkle in his eye said today:

"These women are working me to death. They don't take lunch themselves or permit me to have any. We have 500 patients here and we had more than that yesterday."

This little band of foreigners is providing everything for the cholera-stricken—blankets, cups, soap, cauldrons. These workers are unable to give individual treatment, for the building is crowded with dead and dying, but the inmates are fortunate as compared with those occupying tents, where the cold snaps their vitality.

Not Sanguine Over Peace.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The Times correspondent at Tehtatja sends the following:

"The Turks have recently piled the pick and shovel with such good will that I am more and more convinced that, except in the event of pressure from another quarter the allies will not risk the losses which direct operations against the Tehtatja lines will entail."

The Constantinople correspondent of the Reuter Telegram company in a late dispatch says:

"Official circles are not very sanguine as to the result of the meeting of the plenipotentiaries. A high official tonight expressed the opinion that there was not more than a five percent chance of arriving at an agreement, unless Bulgaria very materially modified her demands, which was not very probable."

The truce will last, if necessary, forty-eight hours, but the question of Adriatic is likely to prove a stumbling block. It is understood the Bulgarians have promised to waive abandonment of the Tehtatja lines, but will insist upon the capitulation of Adrianople. The Turkish delegates are equally determined that Adriatic shall remain Turkish. The porte undoubtedly has derived encouragement from the attitude of Austria towards Serbia.

"Turkish information from St. Petersburg is that important movements of troops are being preparatory to a general mobilization."

No combination is likely to prove so satisfactory as Winchester Repeating Shotguns and Winchester Loaded Shells—the Red W Brand. They are of proven merit and established reputation. If you shoot them, you are absolutely sure of one thing, and that is that no one has a more reliable, accurate, or result-producing equipment. A word to the wise shooter is sufficient, and that is "Winchester."

MANDOT AND RIVERS WILL BE FIT FOR GREAT BOUT

By H. M. Walker.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 25.—Over 1,000 followers of the boxing game traveled to Vernon yesterday, where they were rewarded with every training camp novelty from fancy bag punching to the knockdown punishment of the ever-suffering sparring partner.

Mexican Joe Rivers worked in the grain line amphitheater of the Pacific Athletic club, the same arena that will be the scene of his Thanksgiving day contest with Joe Mandot of New Orleans.

A half mile up Santa Fe avenue Mandot was working in the ring of the Doyle camp, and so great was the crush to see the Frenchman in action that an admission fee was charged.

Rivers began boxing at 3 o'clock. Mandot did not put on the gloves until 3:30.

Through with his preliminary work, which he had featured by knocking a hole in his punching bag, Rivers began boxing with little Eddie Campi, the San Francisco bantam.

Joe was careful not to hurt his helper, but in the second round landed a sharp left that sent Campi staggering back against the ropes.

The Californian's next ring mate was "Young" Budd, a compacted plodder weighing close to 145 pounds. Joe cut loose with this big boy and mangled him about the four sides of the ring for two rounds, scoring a short chop that dropped Budd to the floor.

Charlie Dalton finished up with the Mexican, this bout being more of a wrestling and tagging match than an exhibition of sparring. Rivers' brown skin was bathed in a flow of perspiration, and according to all indications the boy is in superb condition.

If there was one flaw in his work of the afternoon it was his inability to judge distance. With both Campi and Budd it was noticed that Joe was missing swing after swing in a manner unusual for him.

Rivers will be handicapped by a slight cut over his eye, an injury which occurred during a camp bout over a week ago. This cut broke open afresh and bled a trifle. As he intends boxing today and Tuesday, the injury cannot be expected to heal before he faces Mandot.

The weight to be made is 133 ring-side.

Rivers claimed to tip the beam at 134 when he finished work yesterday. Mandot is well under the lightweight limit, and may go into the ring as light as 129 pounds.

What is your idea of Thursday's bout? "I wouldn't have made the match," answered Joe. "I make no play of battle until I get inside the ring. In this case I am making no knockout promises. I am going to box to the best of my ability in order to win, and the worst I look for is the decision at the end of the twentieth. I may win soon, but we won't talk about this chance."

Rivers is a man of consistent words. It is easy to see that he figured himself a winner under the 20-round limit. "My last go against Mandot was one of the poorest fights I ever had," admits Joe. "I simply could not get going, and not once during the 20 rounds did I land my best punch. I don't think that Mandot is built to stand up under the punch that I pull when I am right. I'm going to be right this time, and Mandot won't find me waiting for his long-arm stuff this time. I'm going to crowd him, and he'll have to mix it with me. After the first mixup, I'll know what I can do for this clever bird."

White Mandot is the favorite in the betting, he's only expected to outpoint Rivers and win a decision. If a knockout is scored, Rivers is the man picked to put over the finishing job.

IN THE WAKE OF THE NEWS

It is hardly fair to Joe Jackson to call him a hold-out. Simply because there is a difference of opinion between him and the Cleveland club as to the amount of salary he is to receive does not mean that Jackson is holding out. If by the time the training season starts Jackson is still out of the fold, then there may be reason for application of such a term, but just now he is merely negotiating with his club.

If Jackson is a hold-out, so is Cobb. The Tigers' star has informed his club as to the amount he expects in his next contract, and the club has not come through, preferring to take the matter up later.

Ball players cannot be blamed for trying to get all they possibly can for their services. That difference of opinion will arise between them and their employers is but natural, but there are decidedly few instances where an amicable settlement is not reached long before the time for reporting rolls around.

Willie Hoppo has once more demonstrated that he is the world's greatest billiard player. His easy victory in the tournament which closed in New York recently shows plainly that the little wizard has not lost his form, and in the opinion of many Hoppo is a more finished player today than he has ever been. It is questionable whether his superior can be recalled in the history of the game. Even the marvelous Jake Schaefer did not have anything on Hoppo during the zenith of his remarkable career. Hoppo is still a young man, has nerves of steel and a temperament which assures his remaining at the head of billiard experts for many years to come.

Moracene Brown, former star pitcher of the Chicago Cubs, may be an umpire in the American league next season. President B. E. Johnson has two cancles in the staff to fill, due to the retirement of Sheridan and Egan, and it is said that Brown is being considered for one of these places.

JOHN T. BRUSH DIES

LOUISIANA, Mo., Nov. 25.—John T. Brush, president of the New York Nationals, died in his private car Oceanic here early this morning. He was on his way west for his health. He had suffered, for years from locomotor ataxia.

AN OLD INDIAN REMEDY

S. S. S. is one of the oldest of medicines; it was prepared and used by the Indian Medicine Men hundreds of years ago in the treatment of all blood disorders. Of course it did not then bear its present name, but the formula for compounding it was just what it is today, and its results then as now, entirely satisfactory to those who used it. S. S. S. is made entirely of roots, herbs and barks without the addition of a particle of mineral. It is the widest known and the best acting blood purifier before the public today. This great remedy cures Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Skin Diseases, Scrofula, Specific Blood Poison, and any and all blood infections and impurities. No one need fear to use S. S. S. It is perfectly safe for any system, and its fine vegetable tonic effects especially recommend it to all weak, debilitated persons who may be in need of a blood purifier. S. S. S. goes into the circulation and removes every particle of impurity, humor or poison from the blood. S. S. S. acts most pleasantly and beneficially on the stomach, assists in toning up the digestive members, and contributes in every way to the blessing of strong robust health. Write for free book on the blood and any medical advice you wish. S. S. S. is sold at drug stores.

Wise People

Don't take chances with doubtful medicines of unknown composition. Dr. Pierce lets people know exactly what his medicines are made of.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

Ask your neighbors. They must know of many cures made by it during the past 40 years right in your own neighborhood.

Address Invalids' Hotel, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President
663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. Maggie Sauer, No. 44 Western Ave., Chillicothe, Ohio, says: "I was troubled with an affection peculiar to women, and had doctors treat me but received only slight relief. Could not do my work without suffering. I applied to Dr. Pierce and took two bottles of his 'Favorite Prescription' and one of his Golden Medical Discovery, and thanks to these medicines, am now cured. Can do my work, and I am a happy woman."

GERM LADEN DUST CAUSES CATARRH

Ely's Cream Balm Kills the Deadly Catarrh Germs.

Catarrh, which is had enough in itself, often results in loss of taste, smell and hearing, and leads to serious throat and lung troubles if not promptly checked. The seat of catarrh is usually in the back of the nose, and its natural course is downward, into the throat and thence to the lungs.

Don't take any chances. If you have any symptoms of catarrh—stuffed up feeling in the head, nasty discharge from the nose, sore throat, or dry, hacking cough, get a fifty-cent bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist, and begin the treatment at once.

This remedy works by "burning out" or "drying up" process. It is simply a cleansing, healing, antiseptic balm, taken through the nostrils back into the head and throat where it instantly reaches the seat of the trouble. That's the only way to effectively and permanently cure catarrh.

Catarrh makes you offensive to yourself and friends. Start using Ely's Cream Balm today, and in a short time you will be permanently cured of this most disgusting disease. Agents, the Robinson Drug Co. Adv.
